“ Friday July 14th made our 2 year anniversary and in those two years our relationship has truly been tested! But no matter what happened between us we always came back to one another. He was my friend and we shared so much with one another. I loved him and I know he loved me. I can't say that we ever went a day without speaking and if we did , we spoke the very next day.

Nakia was one of a kind and I will really miss him.

There's an old saying... you'll understand better by and by...Now I can say I know why God reconnected us after 30 years...so that we could experience True Agape love...unconditional love in this life. I will love you forever and always Nakia James Thompson... Fly high King and I will see you on the other side.

“ To my best male friend ever, my husband's favorite cousin ever, the most spirt football player ever, one of the best Dads ever, one.of the best sons ever and one of the best all around people ever. I will truly miss you. Give my husband Pep a big hug for me which I know he's going to be happy to see you. Until me meet again my brother 😭.
Love you ❤️

“ When we found out that I was pregnant, I was terrified of what you would say. However, you were proud to become a PaPa and IMMEDIATELY claimed her as YOUR BABY. I knew from that moment that everything would be okay. You would love her just as you have loved me. You wanted EVER ultrasound, wanted an update after EVER doctor visit, just wanted to hear about your baby. I could literally share a million and one memories on here but this one happens to be one of my favorites. The day that you found out you would be a Papa to a babygirl, I'm sad that you never got the chance to hold her but will make sure she knows the type of man her PaPa was and how proud you were to have her on the way. We love you and continue to watch over us Daddy until we meet again.
